You can choose from...

Yirgacheffe: Ethiopia's cream of the crop, the finest of the country's coffee varieties, an intense bean with a highly distinctive floral bouquet, rich body, fragrant aroma, and mellow smoothness.

Sidamo: Highly prized by coffee buyers from around the world, featuring a fleeting, floral aroma with a bright yet soft finish and a wonderful hint of lemon.

Harrar: Can have a strong dry edge, winy to fruit-like acidity, rich aroma, and a heavy body. Fragrant and floral with fruity overtones like blueberry and blackberry. Often used in espresso blends to capture the fine aromatics in the crema.

Ethiopia, The birthplace of coffee

We love our coffee as much as the next person, but through our travels have realized that in America we tend to live in a coffee culture of necessity. We need it to wake us up in the morning or keep us going through the day.

However, there's something very honorable about the way Ethiopians respect their coffee. They celebrate the economic value the product has on the individual and the country, and in turn use it to honor themselves and each other. So as you drink your coffee today, we hope you celebrate all that it represents, and of course, enjoy the yummy taste and the extra boost of energy!
